Required Textbooks:

Frederick M. Wheelock and R. A. LaFleur, Wheelock's Latin (1995).
Anne Groton and James May, Latin Stories (1986).

Objective:

The purpose of this course is to build on students' existing knowledge of Latin by learning more about Latin grammar, increasing their working vocabulary, and developing reading skills. The ultimate objective is for each student to become an independent reader of Latin.

Course Activities:

Assignments of memorization, translation, and composition will be given on a daily basis. These assignments will be reinforced in the classroom by teaching and discussion.

Preparation:

Learning Latin is a step-by-step process which cannot be accomplished by cramming before tests. Each student MUST NOT fall behind if he/she hopes to succeed. Therefore, all daily assignments are due at the beginning of class, no exceptions. Lack of preparation for class, in addition to seriously undermining your knowledge of Latin and ability to do well in the course, may affect your final grade negatively, especially in borderline situations. On the other hand, consistent preparation and enthusiastic participation will be rewarded.

Absentee Policy:

In order to participate and to learn Latin you must be physically present. Neither homework, nor quizzes, nor tests can be made up for unexcused absences or for coming to class late; a zero will be recorded for those grades. Also, any absence after the first will take three (3) points off your final course grade.

Honesty:

All students are responsible for knowing and obeying the student honor code, which can be found in the UF undergraduate catalog on-line. Here are a couple of excerpts:

Cheating: The improper taking or tendering of any information or material which shall be used to determine academic credit. Taking of information includes, but is not limited to, copying grade homework assignments from another student; [...] Tendering of information includes, but is not limited to, giving your work to another student to be used or copied [...]

Misrepresentation: Any act or omission with intent to deceive a teacher for academic advantage [...]

Cheating is a violation of education, of your instructor, and of your classmates. In no way will it be tolerated. If you are found cheating you will be reported to the honor council with the request that the maximum penalty for the offense be imposed.

Extra Credit:

No extra credit will be offered.
