I am happy to write in support of the above who is seeking sponsorship to allow her to study journalism in the United States.

I met her when she came to England in May to take part in the English Speaking Union's International Public Speaking Competition. She had been selected to represent her country, and she acquitted herself well. She is articulate, has a good command of the English language, and a very pleasant personality. She impressed me as a good all-round student who relates well to people. I think she will do well in her chosen profession and I can wholeheartedly recommend her for sponsorship.
